DentaCore acquires Adent Cliniques Dentaires from European Dental Group

A leading dental group in French-speaking Switzerland joins Switzerland's largest dental network

DentaCore Group ('DentaCore') has acquired Adent Cliniques Dentaires ('Adent') from European Dental Group ('EDG'), a portfolio company of Nordic Capital. The transaction was signed and completed on 3 November 2026.

With 24 clinics, two dental laboratories and approximately 500 employees, Adent is a leading dental group in French-speaking Switzerland. DentaCore operates Switzerland's leading dental network comprising 65 locations. With the acquisition of Adent, DentaCore has established the country's largest dental platform, spanning 19 cantons across German- and French-speaking Switzerland.

DentaCore: a network for sustainable, patient-centred dentistry

Founded in 2021, DentaCore operates a network-based model, providing practices and clinics with a shared platform of central services, from finance, HR, procurement and IT to administration, quality assurance and continuing professional development. Practices and clinics retain their local identities, patient relationships and responsibility for patient care. Clinical decisions remain with the treating dentists, while a Medical Advisory Board safeguards their professional independence.

Adent's clinics and laboratories will become part of this network. For Adent's patients, care will remain in familiar hands: their treating dentists and points of contact remain unchanged, as will the commitment to quality and reliability.

> "Adent is one of the strongest names in dentistry in Swiss Romandie, with excellent dentists and a loyal patient base. We thank European Dental Group for the care with which it has developed Adent and prepared it for its next chapter. Our ambition is to be the best owner and partner for Adent's clinics: we are committed to investing for the long term and continuing to grow in French-speaking Switzerland."
